GROW COTTON.

Farmers should not lose sight of the fact that the Jasper Gin Co. wants a large acreage of cotton planted this year. It is true a large amount has been contracted for, but there is room for more and the promoters, Messrs Hackworth and Roberson, are anxious that the plant run to its full capacity. Therefore, if you have not made arrangements for a few acres in cotton on your farm, get busy at once. Remember Southern acreage is diminished this year on account of the boll weevil and price will remain high.

The News appreciates hard-working people as much as any, and at this moment its hat is off to those who are carrying on the work of the Curry Sanatorium at South Pittsburg. This institution in a modest way is doing a great work, and it is our ardent wish that some philanthropist would come along and endow this institution with such a fund as would make it possible to fully perform the mission its promoters desire for it,—the assisting of humanity.

Jasper capitalists should make every effort to land that spinning mill project. Testimony recently obtained shows that cotton spinners are enjoying wonderful prosperity, declaring profits of from 100 to 300 per cent. The people of Jasper, if outside capital does not establish the enterprise, should get together, sell the shares and establish the plant anyway.

It is impossible to please every body you meet, so what's the use of trying to carry water on both shoulders? Go ahead, do your duty as you see it, pay your debts, tell a man to his face the thing you would say behind his back and put your trust in the Lord—and keep your powder dry. If you carry a pail of water on each shoulder you will undoubtedly get a shower bath sooner or later.

Jasper should put itself on the aeroplane map by offering a free landing place for aerial voyagers. It is hardly proper to land in a person's field, except by permission of that party or accident, and a free landing field would advertise Jasper widely as the aeroplane craze is just starting.

President Wilson calls on democrats to endorse the treaty. Providentially for this land there are several millions of democrats in this country who think differently and will vote differently in November unless their party throws off Wilsonism.

If the railroad administration under McAdoo ran behind a million dollars and more daily, how much would the government of the United States run behind if he were president?—Enid (Okla.) Event.

What "Pep" Is

Vigor, vitality, vim and punch--
That's pep!
The courage to act on a sudden hunch--
That's pep!
The nerve to tackle the hardest thing,
With feet that climb and hands that cling,
A heart that never forgets to sing--
That's pep!
Sand and grit in a concrete base--
That's pep!
Friendly smile on an honest face--
That's pep!
The spirit that helps when another's down,
That knows how to scatter the blackest frown,
That loves its neighbor and loves its town--
That's pep!
To say "I will"--for you know you can--
To look for the best in every man--
That's pep!
To meet each thundering knockout blow,
And come back with a laugh, because you know
You'll get the best of the whole darned show--
THAT'S PEP!

MR. WILSON HER MENTOR

(From the Brownsville, Pa.)
Telegraph)

Miss Alice Wood, a teacher in the Washington, D. C., high school was suspended some time since for preaching revolutionary doctrines.

She was called before the Senate investigators few days ago to answer for her fault when, to the amazement of her inquisitors, she pleaded in extenuation of her conduct, that she was following the writings of Woodrow Wilson.

Pressed further, she produced a copy of a text book, written by the President, containing the objectionable teachings.

BIG DAM TO BE BUILT NEAR BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport, May 7.—Between 1000 and 2000 workmen will be employed, and millions of dollars will be expended, in the construction of a lock and dam at a point on the Tennessee river several miles below this place, according to an announcement made here this week.

A government engineer is preparing for the commencement of preliminary work, which is expected to commence at an early date. Several carloads of lumber are reported already in transit for the construction of quarters for the hundreds of workmen who will be utilized there.

The dam, which is to be constructed by the government as a navigation project, will be twelve feet high, and it is estimated that it will raise the Tennessee river nine feet; it will be approximately one mile in length.

The location of the proposed dam will be at Widow's Bar, it is stated, which is midway between Widow's Creek and Caperton's Ferry, several miles below Bridgeport.

BOOKS AS MEDICINE

Books are frequently referred to as tools and as the key to the treasure trove of knowledge. The American Library is daily demonstrating in U. S. Public Health Service Hospitals that convalescent soldiers and sailors find returning health and increasing strength in good books.

BOOKS BRING AID TO SOLDIER SICK FARM DWELLERS ASK FOR BOOKS

American Library Association Serves Ten Thousand Men in Nation's Hospitals. Announcement of the "Books for Everybody" Movement Brings Letter Flood.

EFFORTS BRING RESULTS. INFORMATIVE WORKS SOUGHT

Works on Vocational Training Circulated Among Men Who Must Take Up New Callings Because of Their Injuries. Requests for Reading Matter Range From Volume on Drainage to Collins' "Book of the Stars."

Hospital library service maintained by the American Library Association during the war was credited with great value in adding to the recovery of many sick and disabled men.

There are still in our hospitals more than 10,000 former service men. Of these nearly 8,000 are in Public Health Service hospitals, the remainder in civilian hospitals. Books, magazines and newspapers are sent to these men from the American Library Association. In the larger hospitals, containing over 300 patients, special librarians are placed. To the smaller hospitals, through the co-operation of many public libraries, library visitors are sent to visit the wards once or twice a week and learn the book needs of the patients.

A special effort is made to supply to ex-service men in hospitals the books in demand as a result of the training given by the Federal Board for Vocational Education.

More Books for Blind.

The A. L. A., in co-operation with other agencies already interested in work for the blind, is printing books in the new Braille type. Because of the newness of the revised Braille adopted for teaching to the American war blind, literature printed in it is limited to fewer than 200 books. Though the total number of blinded soldiers is small, their need of books is great, and the "magic of print" can do much to restore hope and usefulness to them.

Not only for former service men who are sick or disabled is the association working. The value of books proved so great to men in camps that efforts are still being made to connect discharged soldiers and sailors with libraries wherever they may be. Hundreds of letters have reached A. L. A. headquarters from former service men telling of the lack of library facilities in particular localities to which those men have returned.

Direct Service Provided.

In many cases there is a state library commission or a nearby library to which a man can be referred for the books he needs, but if there is no such organization through which he can be served, books for almost any serious purpose may be borrowed directly from the A. L. A. War Service, 24 West Thirty-ninth street, New York city. The only expense in connection with these loans is prepayment of return postage on books borrowed.

The A. L. A. has published lists of books to help ex-service men who are studying to advance themselves in their work. "Five Hundred Business Books," "One Thousand Technical Books" and reading courses on practical subjects are now in preparation.

Other Work Being Done.

Other branches of work which the A. L. A. War Service is carrying on include service to the Merchant Marine, Coast Guard and lighthouses, service to industrial communities which are resultant from the war, service to United States forces overseas. This work is carried on with money received from the United War Work funds, the use of which is limited by the conditions of the gift to these specific purposes.

The service of the Merchant Marine department provides free library service to seamen on American merchant ships in the form of "crews' libraries," bookcase boxes, each containing about 30 books. These libraries are exchangeable at principal ports. Books and magazines are sent also to men in coast guard stations, in lighthouses and on lightships.

The announcement of the entrance of the American Library Association upon the "Books for Everybody" movement and still later news accounts of the activities of the organization along these lines resulted in a widespread appeal from residents of the rural districts of the country for books on farming. Whether the American farmer is simply evidencing his ambition to do a good job better or whether the better crops of his neighbor, who has attended an agricultural college or school, has spurred him on is a matter difficult to determine. But the fact remains the farmer is asking for books. The great majority of American farmers are either without libraries and book service or they are inadequately served.

One of the points which the American Library Association in its "Books for Everybody" movement is strongly urging is the extension of the county library system in states where enabling acts have been passed—some twenty-one in number—and the proper legislation in others which have not yet taken the step. The system, with its central library and radiating lines to stations in the remotest sections of the county, assures good books to every man, woman and child who cares to reach out a hand and grasp one.

Letters Show Need of Service.

The American Library Association is not giving its entire attention to the urban dweller, nor is it neglecting the centers of population for the rural districts and communities. It is, however, unquestionably eager to create a steady flow of informative reading to rural America. That the need for such service exists and that it is anxiously sought is evidenced in every letter of this nature received by state library commissions and by the A. L. A. A few excerpts have been selected because they seem to express most truly the needs of thousands of others.

When Lydia Carlson, whose farm is beyond Mason, Wis., asked for copies of "Productive Farm Crops," "Productive Vegetable Growing" and "Principles of the Practice of Poultry Raising" she echoed the book needs of her neighbors. Then she revealed the fact that her eyes are not always in the furrows by asking for a copy of Collins' "Book of the Stars."

What Others Desired.

There was a pressing need behind the letter from James Dunn, who lives ten miles from Convent, La., the nearest town, which has a population of only 500 people. He asked for a copy of "Practical Farm Drainage." The task of keeping his acres dry was beyond him. Walter Williams of Osseo, Wis., wanted to know if he could make fuel alcohol from frozen potatoes and spoiled fruits, and if he could, where there any books on the subject. The requests run the whole range of farm operations. Some wish to know how to treat scale, others desire facts on hog raising. Books giving information on crop rotation are in demand.

The American Library Association is raising a $2,000,000 fund to finance the "Books for Everybody" movement which during the next three years will be carried on in co-operation with existing libraries and library agencies. The money is not being raised through the medium of an intensive drive but through the individual efforts of the librarians, library trustees and friends of libraries.
